PATTERSON JURY IN A TANGLE; TEN TO ACQUIT, TWO TO CONVICT

LIQUOR BRIBE FUND WAS USED IN ALBANY

Grand Jury Reports on Its Investigation of the $50,000 Raised to Influence Excise Legislation and Recommends Facts Be Sent to Governor.

After days of patient investigation the Grand Jury has discovered where some of that $50,000 raised by the liquor dealers went. But the liquor dealers who contributed to the fund and want their money back will have to wait a while to be enlightened because District-Attorney Jerome has decided not to make the evidence public for the present

However, a step has been taken in bringing knowledge to the subscribers of the whereabouts of the big fund contributed during the session of the Legislature last spring to influence excise legislation. The money went to Albany all right. Somebody got a lot of it all right. And a lot of it went into places in Albany that are not mentioned in polite society.

The Grand Jury returned a presentment to Judge Cowins in Part I. of General Sessions to-day concerning the corruption fund that created quite a stir. That the fund was raised and shipped to Albany in instalments was established by evidence, but the evidence did not establish that any crime had been committed within the boundaries of New York County.
